VOL. 28 BLOOMSBURG, PA., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1893. NO 5

THE CHOIR CONCERT.

The concert given by St. Paul's male choir on Thursday evening of last week was well attended, about two hundred persons being present. Every piece on the program was well rendered, and most of them were encored. The playing of the orchestra was excellent. The members are Charles. P. Elwell leader, violin; Alexander Cohen, C. M. Stauffer, violins; H. G. Eshelman, clarionette; W. H. Butts, piano; William Metherell, bass viol; Edward Searles, cornet. Prof Butts recited two pieces in a very pleasing manner. The choir of twenty one men and boys sang two selections, "The ninety and nine" and "Waiting at the Pool."

The double quartettes by Messrs. Colley, Harman, Foulk, Houck, Butts, Hummer, Harrar and Ent were well rendered. They sang "Oh, Happy Day" and "Sweet and Low," with "Love's Uncertainty" for an encore. The solos of Miss Beth Runyon were among the most pleasing features of the concert. She was in excellent voice, sang sweetly and with much expression. Her selections were "For all Eternity" and "Fiddle and I," and was heartily encored both times. Miss Maud Runyon accompanied her on the piano, with violin obligato by Mr. Chas. P. Elwell. After her first number Master Charles Wilson presented her with a beautiful bouquet, on behalf of the choir.

Miss Maud Runyon played "Au Matin" on the piano, in her usual skillful and pleasing way, and was encored. She was presented with a bouquet also, by Master Mortimer Butler for the choir.

Mr. Chas. P. Elwell's violin solo, an intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" was thoroughly enjoyed. He is a master of the instrument and plays with great tenderness and feeling. Miss. M. Runyon accompanied him on the piano. He responded to an encore.

Mr. David Tasker's mouth-organ solo was a pleasant feature, and he too was recalled.

The orchestra and double quartette wore full dress suits, and all the members of the choir wore button hole bouquets, the gifts of several young ladies of the congregation. The net proceeds were about $50.00.

The members of the choir are Frank Colley, Wm. Laycock, Wm. Sawyer, W. H. Butts, C. T. Hendershott, Fred Midgley, John Savits, J. Lee Harman, David Tasker, Charles Wilson, Harry Houck, O. W. Ent, Boyd Maize, John Rinker, John Fox, Deforest Hummer, Frank Phillips, B. Pierce Foulk, E. H. Harrar, Mortimer Butler, Elijah C. Shutt.

The concert was given under the direction of Geo. E. Elwell, organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's. J. Lee Harman was business manager, and Chas. T. Hendershott, treasurer.

At a meeting of St. Paul's choir held last Saturday evening the following action was taken:

Resolved, that the thanks of the choir be tendered to Misses Maud and Beth Runyon, Mr. Chas. P. Elwell and the members of his orchestra, who rendered such valuable aid at our recent concert, and to all those who favored us with their patronage, or in any manner assisted in making the entertainment a success.

We further desire to thank the ladies who presented us with button hole bouquets on that occasion, for their kindness.

UNION GOSPEL MEETINGS.

Five of the churches of Bloomsburg, viz, the Baptist, Lutheran, Methodist, Reformed and Presbyterian have united in extending a call to Rev. E. E. Davidson, of Mass., to join them in conducting a series of evangelistic meetings in our town.

The union meetings will begin Monday evening, Feb. 6, and will be held during the first week, in the five churches above named in turn. Evangelist Davidson will be with us on Sunday, the 12th, and the evening meetings will then be held in the Opera House. The time and places for the day services will be announced later.

Let the christian people seek, "with one accord," by prayer and personal effort, a great blessing for Bloomsburg through these meetings.

Invitations are out announcing the marriage of Miss Regina Lowenberg, daughter of Mrs. D. Lowenberg, of Bloomsburg to Mr. Wolf Dreifuss, member of the firm of Dreifuss Brothers, of Milton. The marriage will take place at the residence of Mrs. Lowenberg on Tuesday, February 14th. Miss Regina has many friends in this place who will be sorry to see her leave Bloomsburg, but their best wishes will go with her wherever she may make her home.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

Regular monthly meeting of School Board was held in Public Library last Friday evening. All the directors were present. The bonds held by Dr. Low, which have matured, were extended one year at five per cent. by the consent of the holder. Committee on supplies reported having procured a platform for the High School building of J. W. Mears & Co. The matter of purchasing the People's Encyclopedia was presented and by resolution indefinitely postponed. P. G. Miller sent letter to committee on supplies, stating that by reason of his supply of No. 6 coal being exhausted, and that he could only get a supply by rail at an increased cost, therefore he could not complete the contract of furnishing 200 tons at the price agreed upon, but would agree to furnish at net cost to him. The committee was instructed to procure coal where they could get it at the lowest rate. The principal's monthly report showed the attendance to be somewhat irregular on account of cold weather and sickness; the Excelsior society had presented the Library with Dickens' works, 9 books of poems, in all 24 volumes; the Lyceum presented Cooper's works, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Ben Hur, Tom Sawyer, &c., in all 21 volumes. The principal suggested the need of the following supplies: Weights and measures and ventilating boards for Fifth street building; abridged dictionaries for the secondary grades, unabridged dictionary for Miss Rawlings' room, and thermometers for several rooms. The following bills were presented and orders drawn for the same:

J. W. Mears & Co., lumber	$ 1 50
Jacob Deiffenbach, ½ doz. brooms	2 00
J. R. Schuyler	2 00
A. C. DeSheppard	3 90
Creasey & Wells	8 65
Water Co., for last quarter.	4 42
J. Saltzer, organ rental	15 00
" " 4 organs	240 00
W. F. Hartman	108 28

The treasurer asked for an order of $1000 to be discounted at 90 days, with which to pay all outstanding bills.

Adjourned to meet February 24th, at 7 o'clock.

Diptheria and Scarlet Fever.

The strict measures adopted by our Board of Health has had the effect to confine the scarlet fever pest to a few families. It still lingers however, and last week there were two fatal cases. Over in Riverside it has been very prevalent, and we don't wonder, as we learn that children are allowed to attend the Sunday School at the Methodist church, from families where three or four have, and some are now down with the disease. The pastor or trustees of the church should prevent this, they may be the cause of an epidemic.

Diptheria is also prevalent. This is a particular infectious disease. To show how easily it is spread, we see a notice that Diptheria is prevalent among the school children of Detroit, Mich., and the charge is made by Dr. R. S. Farnum, of that city, that the disease has been spread by interchanging lead pencils. The Board of Education furnishes pencils for all the scholars, and the latter are not allowed to use any others. The scholars get one pencil to-day and another to-morrow, all the pencils being dropped into a box at the close of school each day. It is no exaggeration to say that the average child using a lead pencil will put the lead end into its mouth forty times a day, and with the pencil going from one child's mouth to another from day to day it is easy to see that the practice might become very dangerous, while, of course, it is unclean.—Danville Intelligencer.

Wonderland's King.

And well-named, too, is the cleverest of all conjurors, Kellar. The programme furnished by this man of mystery is one never to be forgotten. Kellar this season produces, among other novel features, his latest invention called "Cagliostro." A startling demonstration of what man can do. Were Kellar to claim the assistance of supernatural beings, the wonders he performs with "Cagliostro" would be considered by most people as ample proof. But Kellar disavows any other help than that furnished by his fertile brain and nimble fingers. And in "Caghostro" these working forces are so cleverly blended that they form the most startling combination of marvelous mystery ever seen on any stage. Astart, that mysterious maiden, who apparently proves that the law discovered by Sir Isaac Newton can be successfully defied, is still seen, together with numberless other startling and original feats. The engagement will be Friday evening Feb. 3rd.

MILLVILLE ITEMS.

Eddie Russel from Unionville who is attending the Friends school here has the honor of being the best boy in town on skates, both in fast and fancy.

Cenith Rote, Lizzie Rich, Sarah Rich. Mary Patton and Mary Hogue spent last Saturday in Watsontown, visiting Mrs. Dan'l Hogue.

Farmers Institute will be held in the Opera House next week beginning with a lecture on the evening of the sixth, continuing through the seventh and eight, these institute are educational and instructive, and Millville being situated in the midst of a high grade of farmers, these institutes are always well attended and very much appreciated.

Willie Casper of Spruce Run died last Sunday with Diptheria which makes the third out of a family of five in a short time. Mary wife of Brooks Keller died in Georgia, he and four children came to Mrs. Casper's shortly after his wife's death, and in a few days Lizzie took the disease and died, and now the third one is gone which leaves one brother who lives here, and the mother who has been an invalid for sometime.

Samuel Demott, Brit and Arthur Johnson and Ellis Ebner caught a large red fox near here recently, they think of giving a chase in the near future.

On Wednesday night Feb. the first we were favored by some excellent music in he way of singing by a company of colored people.

Dr. Harriman and wife of Hughsburg drove to town on Monday to see his horse that had its leg broke at Heller's stable last week.

Wm. Demott of Eyersgrove will build a house on Walnut street in the early spring, on a lot recently bought of F. W. Heller.

Orvill is now all smiles, and no wonder for he is father, its a boy.

W. B. German has bought back his home which he recently sold to C. W. Brink.

REV. E. E. DAVIDSON.

Evangelist Davidson, who is expected in Bloomsburg, Feb. 12, to conduct a series of union revival meetings, is referred to in the Hamilton, (N. Y.) Sentinel in these words: "Mr. Davidson's work is wholly free from shallow sensation and excitement, altogether healthy and helpful. The sincerity of the preacher, his broad sympathy, the happy mingling of strong personal conviction and common sense in all that he says, earns for the evangelist from the first the confidence and respect of the people. Mr. Davidson may be called the business man's evangelist. He is himself by education and experience a business man. Mr. Davidson's appeal is not primarily to the emotions, but to the reason and conscience. He is, first and last, a preacher to men. He understands men. He knows their temptations. He is familiar with their doubts. He is able to see things from their point of view. He is a kind, frank fearless preacher, stimulating and convincing, his reasoning and appeal centering around the thought that righteousness is right."

FREE TEXT BOOKS.

A bill has been introduced in the House providing for a uniform series of text books in common schools, creating a board to procure such books and to provide for their publication and sale when procured. It would be a great advantage to have a uniform series of text books in each County, and possible for the County to purchase the books, but for a uniform series of books throughout the State and published at the expense of the State would be a calamity.

A local institute will be held for Montour and Hemlock districts at Buckhorn on Saturday Feb. 4th; for Beaver, Main and Mifflin at Mifflinville on Saturday Feb. 18th; for Orange and Fishingcreek at Stillwater on Saturday March 4th. All teachers of these distircts are expected to attend. Other teachers, and friends of the schools are cordially invited to be present. Able instructors will be secured for each institute. Exercises to begin at 10 o'clock a. M.

Rev. S. B. Barnitz D. D., traveling Secretary of Home Missions for the Lutheran church west of the Missippi, will preach in the Lutheran church next Sunday morning, and deliver the address in the Woman's Missionary Praise Service in the evening. It will be a field day in the Lutheran church. Everybody welcome.

Dr. M. J. Hess moved into his new house on Fifth street, Monday.

BLOOMSBURG IN THE LEAD.

Bloomsburg is forging right ahead. There is not enough houses in the town to accomodate the people While we are meeting with such great prosperity, we hear the wails from other towns like the following:

The number of vacant houses in Milton is getting larger every day. Whether this is because many new buildings have been erected the past two years or because of the closing down of our important works, is hard to say. At all events the "to let" signs confront a man on almost every street in Milton.—Millonian

Bloomsburg is considered one of the most enterprising manufacturing towns in the state, and yet nearly all its industries are small ones. The growing towns are the ones that have small and varied industries. They are the ones where the workmen own their own houses, and are classed among the best citizens. Such towns have a substantial appearance, visible in mercantile business, schools, churches, and all institutions that live towns have. We need in Hughesville industries with capital ranging from $1000 to $20,000; we need a Board of Trade, whose business it will be to advertise the advantages of the town as a manufacturing centre; we need another railroad; in fact we need something to waken us up.—Hughesville Mail.

Rules for the Spring Election.

While the expense of conducting the February election will be paid by the County Commissioners, the Auditors of the several townships and boroughs in the various districts must see to the printing of the official ballot. The size of the ticket will vary in different districts according to the number of offices to be filled.

The candidates of each party will be arranged in groups, and the system of marking tickets by voters to designate their choice will be the same as that employed at the November election.

Groups will be headed by the word "Township" or "District," as the case requires. In townships not divided into election districts there will be but one group under each party name. So also in undivided boroughs.

In townships that have been subdivided into two or more election districts there will be two groups, "Township" and "District." The word Democratic, Republican, or other party name, must be the caption of each group, just as in a general election.

The names of candidates must be accompanied by their residences. The ballots will contain as many columns as there shall be party tickets, and one blank column. Candidates can be named by nomination papers in the same manner as at a general election.

The Democratic or Republican ticket will have precedence on the ticket in each city, borough or township according to the party majority at the last preceding election.—Ex.

Too Much for the Money.

Last Saturday evening the Lyceum, one of the Literary Societies of the High School gave another of their very interesting entertainments. The Hall was well filled and the net receipts will reach nearly $25, which will be expended in the purchase of books for the Public library. All present were of the general opinion that there was too much for the money—an admission of only ten cents being charged. Music was furnished by the High School orchestra composed of Carlton Caswell organist; Daniel Butler, first violin; Edward Holmes, second violin; and James Stamm, cornet, singing with Banjo accompaniment furnished by Harry Kline, James Stamm, John Tomb and Carl Brown. The subject for debate was "The pen mightierer than the Sword," Edward Holmes, Boyd Maize and Julia Furman on the affirmative and Sallie Roberts, Frank Lutz and Paul Eyerly on the negative. The Judges gave their verdict in favor of the affirmative

The next entertainment will be given by the Excelsior Society Saturday February 25.

Union Gospel Meetings will be held in the churches next week, at 7:30 p. m., as follows: Monday, Feb. 6, in the Baptist church, Tuesday, in the Reformed church; Wednesday in the Lutheran church; Thursday in the Presbyterian church. All are invited to come, bring their friends. Pentecostal Hymns will be used at these and all the union services during the next four weeks. They may now be bought of W. H. Brooke & Co. for ten cents a copy with the notes.

STILL WATER.

These sunny days are taking our sleighing.

The steam saw mill is doing quite a flourishing business here in the valley.

The protracted meeting here in the M. E. Church closed last Sunday with a large attendance and a number of converts.

Gaylord McH and Samuel Smith certainly know the depth and temperature of Stillwater, as the ice didn't carry them.

Miss Lizzie Drescher is visiting at her uncle Stephen Drescher's.

Mrs. John Hufford, and Mr. and Mrs. Dan McHenry are on the sick list.

About sixty young people gathered Tuesday evening, last week for a party at Miss Josephine Drescher's. All report a good time. They have the respect of the family for their good behavior.

Our school is progressing finely in the new school house. Prof. E. B. Beishline teacher.

Miss Grace Edgar's school reopened Monday, which was closed two weeks on account of sickness.

Marshall P. Wilder and the Schumann Concert Company appeared at the Opera House Tuesday evening. Although the audience was small, yet those who were present thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment, and gave evidence of their appreciation by enthusiastic applause and frequent encores. Miss Jessie Mann, of Sunbury, the pianist, is well known here, and has appeared at several concerts given in this place on previous occasions. Her technique is well developed, and her solos were well received, an encore being required for each one. The singing of Miss Douglass and Miss Weist was also much enjoyed. They gave two duets "Cheerfulness" and "Venetian Boat Song", and each lady sang two solos. The program was not strictly followed but the numbers contributed were all encored. Miss Douglass has a rich contralto, and Miss Weist a soprano voice, which, though rather light in the upper register, is still well adapted to the style of music she presents. Marshall P. Wilder is a humorist, who could be listened to for an entire evening without becoming tiresome. After each of his monologues, including recitations, humorous sketches and scenes from every-day life, he was enthusiastically recalled. Those who did not take this opportunity of hearing him missed a treat. C.

Apt Pupils.

During a visitation of some members of the School Board last week in one of the school rooms the teacher, in order to get the closest attention of all the members of his class in spelling stated "I will now give a word that may be spelled in different ways, but I will give 5 cents to each one who will spell the word correctly as defined. After defining the meaning of the word, it was announced, and to his astonishment nine spelled it correctly. The teacher doled out the money amid much merriment.

At the request of a number of Auditors of the County we made a list of the tickets for each election district, and received a number of bids, and award the bid to Elwell and Bittenbender to print the tickets for $3.75 per thousand. We would recommend to the Auditors that if you cannot get the tickets for your district printed at the rate of $3.75 per thousand that you certify your nominations to the office of Elwell and Bittenbender Bloomsburg Pa., and they will print the same, and if the Auditors prefer, the County Commissioners will deliver the tickets when they deliver the election blanks for the different districts.

COMMISSIONERS OF COLUMBIA CO.

Honey Brook a town about seven miles from Hazleton is considerably agitated because of the outbreak of fire that was supposed to have been quenched in the mines underneath the town. Everything is being done to counteract the effects of the flames and if possible to extinguish them. Throughout the village, gas and steam is constantly issuing from the crevices in the earth. The odor is almost unbearable.

The greatest apprehension is felt by the people and especially by the women folks, who are constantly on the alert for manifestations of a weakening of the surface. A large gang of men are now engaged in stripping the coal at the outcrop of the vein. It is thought that the seat of the fire can thus be laid open and advantage for fighting it gained.

PERSONAL.

Geo. E. Elwell Esq. is in Towanda this week on legal business.

Misses Martha Runyon and Edith Weiss are visiting friends in Troy.

J. W. Perry of Elk Grove was in town Monday. Mr. Perry is getting ready for the sportsmen—his hotel is the favorite resort.

J. G. McHenry of the firm of Rohr McHenry & Son of Benton, was in town Saturday. He is the wide awake committeeman of Benton township.

Robert Buckingham Esq., W. B. Taylor and J. B. Casey returned last Friday from their trip to Rochestor. They also took in Buffalo and Niagara Falls, and report having had a fine time.

There will be a Farmers' Institute at Berwick Thursday and Friday of next week, February 9th and 10th. Prominent speakers have been secured.

Rev. A. E. Gobble, President of Central, Pa., college, will preach in the Evangelical church on next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. He will also address the men's meeting in the afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. hall.

The Bloomsburg Gun Blub expects to have a shooting tournament February 22d. The best marksmen of the State will be here. It is probable the Fair Grounds will be selected as the place for shooting. Live Pigeons will be used.

A Union Meeting of the young people's societies of the several churches will be held in the Methodist church next Sunday evening at half past five. Prof. Albert will lead. Pentecostal Hymns will be used, which may now be bought at W. H. Brooke & Co's. for ten cents.

Advance sheet of the official Catholic directory for 1893 has just been issued. The population is given as 7,806,065, to whom spiritual guidance is given by 14 archbishops, 75 bishops and 9,397 priests, of whom 6,954 are secular and 2,443 are regular priests. There are 8,477 churches, 3,485 stations and 1,763 chapels. The 1,845 students for the secular priesthood are educated in 36 seminaries. There are 127 colleges, 657 academies and 3,587 parochial schools; 728,209 children attend the parochial schools; 26,533 orphans are cared for in 245 orphan asylums, besides which there are 463 other charitable institutions.

Can the Baker Ballot be Used in Bloomsburg?

Two weeks from next Tuesday will be the time for the election of township officers, and the people of Bloomsburg are far from being settled on the question of can the Baker Ballot be used. The new law provides that the "ballot shall be so printed as to give to each voter a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates by a cross-mark (X) in a sufficient margin at the right of the name of each candidate;" and further, "There shall be left at the end of the list of candidates for each different office, as many blank spaces as there are persons to be elected to such office, in which the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot." It is evident that the accumulative voting system can not be designated by a cross-mark (X) neither can there be a repetition of the same name, either written or printed. There is therefore but one conclusion, if the Baker Ballot is to be used in Bloomsburg, then the system of minority representation must be abolished. Let us look at the Act of Incorporation. Section 4 says "To the end that the electors of Bloomsburg may exercise their right of suffrage freely and without undue constraint, and may obtain for themselves complete representation in their local government, the plan of the free vote shall be lawful and is hereby authorized in the elections for officers of said town and for all officers to be chosen by them exclusively." It would appear from this that it is simply optional with the citizens whether they vote by the accumulative voting system or otherwise. The matter rests with the nominating Committees; if they see fit to recommend the use of the Baker Ballot it may be done, but with that ballot no accumulative votes can be cast; but if any elector see fit to use a ticket as heretofore it seems evident that they may do so. We invite correspondence on this subject for our next issue.

IF I WERE FAIR.

If I were fair!
If I had little hands and slender feet;
If to my cheeks the color rich and sweet
Came at a word and faded at a frown;
If I had clinging curls of burnished brown;
If I had dreamy eyes aglow with smiles,
And graceful limbs, and pretty girlish wiles—
If I were fair, love would not turn aside,
Life's path, so narrow, would be broad and wide
If I were fair!

If I were fair,
Perhaps like other maidens I might hold
A true heart's store of tried and tested gold,
Love waits on beauty, though sweet love alone,
It seems to me, for aught might well atone.
But beauty's charm is strong, and love obeys
The mystic witchery of her shy ways.
If I were fair my years would seem so few;
Life would unfold sweet pictures to my view
If I were fair!

If I were fair!
Perhaps the baby, with a scream of joy,
To clasp my neck; would throw away a toy,
And hide its dimples in my shining hair,
Bewildered by the maze of glory there!
But now—Oh, shadow of a young girl's face,
Uncolored lips that Pain's dull fingers trace,
You will not blame the child whose wee hands close,
Not on the blighted bud, but on the rose
So rich and fair,

If I were fair,
Oh, just a little fair, with some soft touch
About my face to glorify it much!
If no one shunned my presence or my kiss,
My heart would almost break beneath its bliss.
'Tis said each pilgrim shall attain his goal,
And perfect light shall flood each blinded soul,
When day's flush merges into sunset bars,
And night is here. And then beyond the stars
I shall be fair!

—Edith Rulter.

THE COUNTRY COUSIN.

"So you are to have a country cousin for a visitor, Seraphina?"

"Yes; don't you pity me?"

"Is she so very countrified?"

"Oh, I presume so. She comes from the northern part of New Hampshire, and is the daughter of a farmer. I have never seen her, for this is her first visit to Boston, but I have no doubt she is a complete rustic."

"Poor Seraphina, how I pity you! Will she be at your party?"

"I am afraid so, unless she gets homesick and goes home before. But I've no doubt she will enjoy her visit to the city too well, and it's only a week to my party, you know."

"Why were you obliged to invite her?"

"Oh, we couldn't get rid of it. Pa insisted on it, though ma and I did all we could do to prevent it. Well, I get out here. Goodby, dear."

"Goodby, Seraphina."

Miss Seraphina Flower signalled to the conductor to stop the car and got out.

The conversation between the two girls had been listened to with great interest by a young girl in a travelling dress, sitting near by. She may be excused for feeling somewhat interested, for she was the country cousin whose intended visit excited so much alarm.

She would not have recognized either of the speakers but for the name Seraphina, and the circumstances that pointed so clearly to her own visit.

"I will ride on," she said to herself. "I don't want Seraphina to know that I have heard her speak of me. I will ride a mile or two further, and take a car back. I will take care not to disappoint her expectations, but appear as countrified as she expects."

Edith Grant was the daughter of a well-to-do farmer, and though she had always lived in the country, had enjoyed advantages of education, not only in the solid, but in the ornamental branches, quite equal to her cousin, while she had been a diligent student, and made much better use of them. An elderly French professor, who had settled in a country town for the sake of his health, had imparted to her an excellent knowledge of his language, while she excelled, not only as a musical performer, but as a singer. Of this, however, her city cousin knew nothing.

Half an hour or more after Miss Seraphina arrived at home, the bell was rung by her country cousin.

"Is Miss Fowler or Seraphiny to hum?" asked Edith, with a broad Yankee accent.

"I'll see," answered the astonished servant. "Who shall I say wishes to see her?"

"Her cousin, Edith Grant, to be sure, just arrived from New Hampshire."

With a suppressed smile, the servant showed Edith into the parlor.

Presently Miss Seraphina sailed into the room and held out her hand in languid curiosity. But she was almost paralyzed when Edith made a rush for her, enveloped her in a boisterous embrace, exclaiming:

"Why, Cousin Seraphiny, how dew you dew, and how's your ma? I'm proper glad to see you?"

"Just as I expected," said Seraphina to herself, with an inward groan. "She's fearfully rustic. I'm very well, thank you," she answered, coldly; "and so is my mother. How did you come?"

"I came by the horse-cars. I've got a check for my trunk. I guess I can get an expressman to get it."

"I presume so."

"What a stylish gown you've got on, Cousin Seraphiny! I wish I had one like it."

"I may find one or two of my old dresses for you to wear," said Seraphina, condescendingly. "I suppose you make your own dresses in the country?"

"We get 'em cut by a dressmaker—Sophy Sykes; she goes out by the day—75 cents a day she charges. It's high, but she makes 'em fashionable."

"No doubt," said Seraphina, with a sneer. "Would you like to go in your room?"

"Yes, Seraphiny, if you please. I'm awful dusty. Perhaps I'd better go into the kitchen, and if you've got such a thing as a wash-basin I'll slick up a little."

"Heavens and earth! she's worse than I expected. How can I have her at my party?" thought Seraphina.

"You will find a wash-basin in your room," she said, with a curl of the lip.

"That's handy," returned Edith.

The servant was called who ushered Edith into the chamber provided for her.

Edith, left alone in her room, took down her hair and arranged it in an unbecoming style, so as to completely cover her ears, retained her travelling dress and came down stairs when the bell rang for supper.

She was received coldly by Mrs. Fowler and Seraphina, who regarded her with evident disdain. Her uncle looked at her in astonishment. Even he was surprised at her evident want of taste and countrified ways, yet he was kind. The next day Edith had a private interview with her uncle and let him into the secret, asking permission for the present to continue the masquerade.

He laughed heartily, for he enjoyed a practical joke.

"It will be a good lesson to Seraphina and her aunt," he said. "I'm really glad, though, to find you're not quite such a rustic as you looked."

"Confess, uncle, you were a little ashamed of me," she said archly.

"Well, I certainly thought that if you were a diamond, it was a rough one," said the uncle.

* * * * * * *

"If I could only keep her away from my party," thought Seraphina a few days later. "She will disgrace us all."

"Edith," said Seraphina, more gracious than usual, "I am going to have a party next Wednesday evening."

"Oh, won't that be nice! Will you have ice cream and cake?"

"I have been thinking," said Seraphina rather awkwardly, "that you wouldn't enjoy it much. You wouldn't know anybody."

"You'll introduce me, won't you, Seraphiny?"

"I could, I suppose; but the fact is, Edith, you will feel out of place. Of course, you shall have all the ice cream and cake you want. I will send it up to your room early in the evening."

"But I want to see the fun, Seraphiny. I never was to a city party."

"That's the very reason you wouldn't enjoy it, Edith."

"Oh, yes I shall! I know I shall! I wouldn't miss it for 25 cents."

To Seraphina's great disgust, Edith was obstinately bent on getting to the party. She called in her mother's assistance, but in vain.

"Well, if you are determined to go, I will give you one of my last season's dresses to appear in. We are about the same height."

"All right, Seraphiny. You're real kind."

"Kind! I'd like to choke her!" said Seraphina to herself. "What in the world made pa invite such a rustic here at this time. To be sure, she's not bad looking, if she wouldn't wear her hair so frightfully. I shall die of mortification."

When the evening of the party came Edith refused all assistance and made her own toilet. She purposely came down late. As she entered the room her uncle, with a smile, came forward and led her in, presenting her with a bouquet.

When Seraphina caught sight of her she started in amazement. The grub had become a butterfly. She had arranged her hair in the style of the day, had on a tasteful dress of her own, instead of appearing in her cousin's finery, and wore an air of complete self-possession, as if she felt quite at home.

"Why, she actually looks respectable," ejaculated Seraphina to her mother. "Who could have dressed her? But her speech will betray her. Gracious! there is father introducing her to the Count De Graumont" (a titled Frenchman, the lion of the evening). "What will he think?"

"Oh, pa!" remonstrated Seraphina, in great distress, "how could you introduce that country gawk to the Count? It will disgrace us in his eyes."

"Suppose you draw near and listen to their conversation," said her father, quietly.

Seraphina did so, and was struck dumb with amazement to hear the supposed rustic conversing easily with the Count in his own language.

"Why, she knows French!" she ejaculated, after a pause.

"I believe she does," said Mr. Fowler.

There was another surprise.

Later in the evening Edith was led to the piano by the Count, and her brilliant execution excited enthusiasm.

"Mais, mademoiselle, but you must sing," said the Count, after rapturously applauding her.

Edith bowed, and in a moment her pure, sweet voice filled the parlors as she sang an Italian song.

"Who is that charming singer, Miss Seraphina?" asked a gentleman.

"It is my cousin," answered Seraphina, in her bewilderment hardly knowing whether she was awake or asleep.

"Not the cousin you said was so countrified, surely?"

"Oh, that was a joke," said Seraphina, confused.

"What does it all mean, Edith?" asked Seraphina, when the company had departed.

Edith smiled.

"When you were lamenting in the horse car that you were to have a visit from a rustic cousin," she explained, "I sat near you and heard all. I had merely assumed the character you selected for me."

"And finely you've taken us all in," said her uncle.

"All but you, uncle," said Edith, smiling.

"Well, I was taken in at first, I admit."

Before Edith's visit was over she became engaged to a rich young city merchant, and she is no longer the country cousin.—Caroline F. Preston, in New York Weekly.

Furs and Winter Styles.

With the advent of the winter season which has begun during Yuletide, the subject of "Furs" becomes, as a matter of fact, of permanent importance to Modistes and their customers. Furs are in great vogue this year and fur trimmings are more used than they have ever been. They are seen in a very great variety of combinations; and since they ornament outside garments as well as as walking costumes, evening and ball dresses, and moreover adorn hats and bonnets of every form, one has need of a sure guide to understand what are really the correct combination of the season. The McDowell Fashion Journals are of invaluablesery in this respect, giving with unerring good taste, and a profusion of practical illustrations and all the necessary information. "La Mode de Paris" and "Paris Album of Fashions" which only cost $3.50 per year, or 35 cents per copy, each, have the finest Parisian styles, and "La Couturiere," $3.00 a year, or 30 cents per copy, gives the most practical French Fashions. Yearly subscribers to either of these Journals are entitled to a Premium Book on "Dressmaking Simplified," valued at $5.00. "La Mode," $1.50 per annum, or 15 cents a copy, is the best Family Journal of Fashion in this country. If not procurable at your newsdealer send direct to the Publishers, A. McDowell & Co. 4 West 14th Street, New York City.

Long-winded Lawless.

HOW THE JUDGE BROUGHT HIS SPEECH TO AN END.

Henry Watterson tells this story of Hon. B. Lawless, a former member of the Louisville bar, and who came from Glasgow, Ky. He was a "long-winded" talker, and when he arose to make an argument he did not know when to stop. On one occasion he was making a speech before Judge Ballard, in the United States Court. He had spoken several hours, and the Judge and everybody else were helpless.

At last Judge Ballard beckoned his brother, Jack Ballard, to him and implored him to stop Lawless if he could "Oh, that's easy enough," replied the brother: "I'll stop him inside of three minutes." There was a great deal of curiosity to see how this could be accomplished, as the orator seemed to be nowhere near the end of his speech. Jack Ballard took a pencil and a sheet of paper and wrote: "My Dear Colonel: As soon as you finish your magnificent argument I would like you to join me in the clerk's office in a bumper of fine old Bourbon." The note was handed to the orator, who paused at the end of a soaring period, drew his glasses from his pocket and read the not. He put it in his pocket and said: "And now, if it please your Honor, and you, gentlemen of the jury, I leave the case with you." He picked up his hat and was in the clerk's office in about a minute.

I have had catarrh for twenty years, and used all kinds of remedies without relief. Mr. Smith, druggist, of Little Falls, recommended Ely's Cream Balm. The effect of the first application was magical, it allayed the inflammation, and the next morning my head was as clear as a bell. I am convinced its use will effect a permanent cure. It is soothing and pleasant, and I strongly urge its use by all sufferers.—Geo. Terry, Little Falls, N. Y.

THE "MAN WHO SMILES."

"There is a man in our town"
He's not so wondrous wise,
But in selecting goods for sale,
The BEST he always buys.

He has a line of IMPLEMENTS
With which no fault is found,
But through the Country far and wide.
Their praises still resound.

Farm wagons of the "KEYSTONE" make;
The finest grade on Earth
One glance at which will serve to show
Their undisputed worth.

Binders, Mowers, Drills and Rakes;
Farm tools of every sort,
A list of which would be too long,
So we must cut it short.

The Farmer's GRAIN he buys for CASH,
For CASH, his Buckwheat Flour;
And the highest Market Price he pays
That lies within his power

Are you acquainted with this man?
His trade extends for miles,
He always tries to please his friends;
He is "THE MAN WHO SMILES."

A GOOD LAW.

Hon. E. M. Tewksbury has introduced the following which ought to secure the support of every member:

AN ACT Requiring manufacturers and merchants or persons employing females to provide conveniences by which such females when not absolutely employed and obliged to be upon their feet may be seated.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That from and after the passage of this act it shall be required of any and all manufacturers merchants or persons employing females to provide them conveniences by which when not absolutely employed and obliged to be upon their feet they may be seated.

SECTION 2. Any manufacturer merchant or person violating the provisions of section one of this act shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor punishable with a fine of twenty-five dollars for each and every offense collectible by any magistrate before whom information is made and conviction had said fine to be paid to the proper school fund in the district where the offense is committed.

What Might Have Been.

The Andrews Higby affair in the Legislature recalls the gubernatorial campaign of 1890, and with it the reflection of what might have been had the result of that Fall's election been just the reverse of what it was.

If George Wallace Delamater had been chosen governor of Pennsylvania there is every reason to believe that the Meadville bank scandal would never have startled the country and give to light the corruption in which a man who aspired to the highest honor within the gift of the State, was plunged. Aside from that it is just as reasonable to suppose that William H. Andrews, his campaign general, would have fallen into some of the many snaps with which the G. O. P. was accustomed to reward its successful workers, and would have been dispensing patronage now, instead of occupying the ingnominious position for which he has lately displayed the requisite asinine qualifications.

The present situation simply goes to show how soon a man whose usefulness is gone is dropped by his constituents. If Mr. Andrews was of any earthly use to his party there would be a decided change to the tenor of the articles which leading Republican papers are publishing daily about him. If his vote was an absolute necessity to make a Republican house the Republican press would not be slow in heaping the abuse, now applicable to Andrews, on Mr. Higby, the lawful elected member from Crawford county. But as it is the large Republican majority in the House and the ranking sore of having had the gubernatorial chair taken from them fires Republicans to vent their spleen on the political corpse who is at the mercy of his ungrateful party. Not because his ambition to usurp another's place is too ungraceful for his party, but because he failed to inflict on the people a man they did not want for governor.

Thus it is that William Andrews finds himself a despised political beggar at the door of the House of Representative.—Bellefonte (Pa.) Watchman.

No flowery rhetoric can tell the merit of Hood's Sarsrparilla as well as the cures accomplished by this excellent medicine.

ONE TERM FOR PRESIDENT.

BY C. R. BUCKALEW.

Having completed our examination of the subject of presidential elections and reached the conclusion that the popular electoral plan for their regulation would be a wise one, the main object of the present paper is accomplished. But the question of the eligibility of a president for re election has been brought into debate along with propositions regarding the manner of choice; they ere, however, perfectly distinct, not only plainly distinguishable but the considerations and reasoning which apply to the one are quite foreign to the other; therefore the manner of electing a president ought to be kept entirely separate from any question of a second term; besides it is inexpedient to connect these questions for debate or for action in Congress or in the State Legislatures; for the enemies of either of the propositions of change in case of their connection would naturally if not inevitably oppose both. Even if separate votes were permitted on the two propositions a union of the enemies of each to oppose both, might still be expected, but as the two subjects are in fact connected in proposed amendments submitted for the action of Congress we will proceed to examine the doctrine of one term, accompanied by the extension of term to six years (the form in which the question is now commonly presented) in order to ascertain whether one termism is a doctrine founded in sound reason and supported by our experience in practical government, as some persons suppose. or on the other hand is a mischievous heresy in political doctrine resting upon a fallacy in argument and wholly unsustained by facts in our political history.

One termism received a considerable impetus and growth in public opinion from the writings of Mr. Greely during a period of forty years when he was engaged for the most part of the time in opposing the election and re election of political opponents to the presidential office. Many honorable and discreet men receiving their impressions directly or indirectly from that vigorous and voluminous writer, remain of the opinion that an amendment to the Constitution according to his views, would have a salutary effect upon the practical administration of our Government.

The main argument if not the only one put forward in support of a one term rule is this: That if the re-election of a president be permitted, an incumbent of that office will use his power, patronage and influence to renominate and re-elect himself; that the large number of persons in office under him, and contractors engaged in public work and their employees constitute a strong phalanx of supporters independent of his merit or claim to public favor, and that an opposing and independent opinion will be, to a great extent, over-borne and suppressed.

To this argument a substantial if not conclusive answer can be made, comprehensible by those even moderately acquainted with the character of political parties and the history of our Government. It is this: That the president is always the chief of a political party, and can and will use his influence and power for the nomination and election of a political friend as his successors with infinitely greater effect than he can for himself. He will always be profoundly interested in the choice of his successor and in the triumph of his party, and his subordinate officials and the employees of Government will feel that their continuance in office or employment may depend upon the zeal and efficiency with which they shall second his views and assist in carrying them into execution.

A notable illustration of this fact was presented by the popular election of 1876 and by the remarkable contest which followed it. The support given by the retiring President, and by members of his cabinet and subordinate officials to the administration candidate for the succession, insured the triumph of the latter, under adverse circumstances and against difficulties which without such support would have been insuperable.

The reason why official influence will be more effective in favor of a successor to the president, than it can possibly be for his own re election is not far to seek, it is less odious, less offensive to public sentiment, is less guarded against by ingenuous minded men, and of course inspires less of opposition and countervailing effort Criticism which would be loud-mouthed against it when used to re-elect a president, would be comparatively subdued and silent, when the allegation of selfish ambition and individual interest could not be made against him. If this view of the subject be true, it follows that the official influence and power of an existing administration is more to be dreaded by an opposing party when the president is not a candidate for re election, than when he is, and that a one term limitation of his office would be no practical limitation of the evil in question: the argument is therefore fallacious and is to be rejected. Besides, there is reason to believe that with reference to past cases of alleged executive interference in contests, the facts have been much overstated because they have been viewed with jealous scrutiny, and suppositions of sinister intent and purpose have obtained, where none in fact existed. That any unlawful, corrupt or even over exertion of executive power and influence, is to be deprecated and opposed, and wherever practicable subjected to restraint or punishmeut, is perfectly clear; he who denies this is not to be reasoned with, but denounced as an enemy of his country. But the consiederate statesman, taking an enlarged view of the field of politics, in view of all the disturbing forces which from time to time disturb the action of government and imperil all stable policy in the enactment and enforcement of law, will admit, that executive influence lawfully and fairly exerted upon public opinion and electoral action, is a countervailing force to those exerted by the refractory, demoralizing and dangerous elements of the social body. That such influence may be usefully exerted against polygamy in Utah, Anarchists in Chicago, and church burning mobs in Philadelphia and the organizations which represent polygamy, anarchy, and mob violence will be questioned by none whose opinions are worth considering. Nor need it be questioned that such power and influence within the limits above mentioned may properly favor political organizations to which the existing administration adheres and which it represents in the Government. That the appointing and removing powers of the executive, in particular, should be exerted for the promotion of party interests or with reference to the known opinions and position of those appointed or removed, is unavoidable in all popular Governments, as well as in those of a different form. That they should be measurably subjected to fixed rules, self imposed by the executive or established by statute law, arises from necessity of guarding against abuse and to secure, more perfectly, integrity and experience in administration, but such regulations have not been extended to the principal executive officers beyond the constitutional requirement of senatorial consent to appointments before made.

The several arguments opposed to one term and which support the re election of a president for a second term, require no great elaboration in statement, being quite plain and simple.

1st. The prospect of re election is a great incentive to good conduct and faithful service of the president during his first term.

2nd. A re elected president will be much better acquainted with public business and public men in his second than in his first term. He will have acquired a stock of knowledge regarding the details of executive administration and also regarding measures of legislation upon which he will be required to act by his approval or disapproval of bills, which will be extremely important and useful to him and to the country in his performance of constitutional duty. This consideration deserves more attention than it has received, in view of the fact that presidents are often selected who have not had congressional or executive experience at Washington prior to their election to the presidential office.

3rd. The two term rule tends to give consistency and stability to government policy and practice, to repress and prevent excessive innovation and change in matters of government while it does not prevent a majority of the people from interposing for cause and decreeing a change of men and measures at the end of a first term. In other words it simply permits the people to continue the service of a president whose official conduct they approve.

4th. Continued service of a President by a second term tends to prevent hasty, inconsiderate, and sometimes injurious changes in the public offices of the country, such as are sure to follow the one term rule if imbedded in the constitution.

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK.

Hon. E. M. Tewksbury introduced the following bills in the House last week: To establish more uniform and precise game laws; to enforce the provisions of the constitution prohibiting the granting of free passes by railroad companies; prohibiting railroad companies from charging passengers more than two cents a mile; requiring persons employing women to provide accommodation for them to sit down.—Item.

READING'S LEASE LEGAL.

Consolidation with the Lehigh Valley Sustained.

JUDGE METZGER'S DECISION.

Judge Metzger has filed his opinion in the equity case of M. H. Arnot, of Elmira, N. Y., a stockholder in the Lehigh Valley Railroad, vs. the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, to rescind the leases with the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

This was the first suit instituted in any State against the combine and Judge Metzger's opinion is the first given by any Common Pleas Court in Pennsylvania concerning the deal. Judge Metzger sustains the master, W. W. Hart, who found in favor of the Reading.

After reviewing the history of the case and quoting section 4, article 17, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania relating to railroads, Judge Metzger proceeds to show by the testimony presented before the master, that the consolidation of the Reading and the Lehigh Valley Railroads was not in violation of the Constitution.

His Honor finds that the Reading and the Lehigh Valley Railroads are not competing lines in the legal interpretation of the phrase, and hence the "combine" was not contrary to law. He says that mere incidental competition between branches or spurs of two systems will not prevent the consolidation of their main lines.

The Reading and the Lehigh Valley are not any more competing lines than two roads located in different parts of the State are competing. Where the railroads are so situated with respect to each other that it is not possible for them to be substantial competitors for traffic from the same shippers or transporters they are not within the mischief intended to be remedied by the framers of the Constitution. It is not the destination of freight or traffic alone which makes the lines competing.

His Honor orders and decrees that the exceptions be dismissed and the report of the master be confirmed and that the bill of the plaintiff be dismissed with costs. The case will be appealed.

The End of a Monarchy.

The overthrow of the Hawaiian monarchy and the establishment of a provisional government marks the final conquest of the Sandwich Island. The country has been practically governed by foreigners for many years—by the missionaries first, and later by the speculators and politicians for whom they prepared the way. The native population has all the time been shrinking and melting away, as the weaker race always will fade before the stronger.

Still, the form of a native monarchy was maintained, chiefly because the rival foreign interests could not agree upon a substiute. English, German American influences contended for the mastery in Hawaiian trade, while within the official circle the native element and the old missionary ring fought one another, and it suited all parties better to keep a dusky monarch on the throne than to allow a rival to get the upper hand.

England has been the chief support of the monarchy, and has more than once defended it with good effect against the influence of the American missionaries. It has been recognized by every one that the natural tendency was toward the Americanization of the island, and the only bulwark against this was the maintenance of the farcical little kingdom, the successive sovereigns being flattered by the English and persuaded to assert their royal prerogative. The present Queen has but lately been visiting London, and was encouraged on her return to make a decided effort to restore the control of the government to native officials. It was the last struggle of a dying cause. The effort failed and her goverment collapsed. There was no violence. It was simply the inevitable that happened.

There is not much use of talking about constitutional rights or anything of that sort. The Hawaiian monarchy has existed only by tolerance and now that it has fallen there is an end of it. all the Queen's horses and all the Queen's men can never set it up again, and it is doubtful if the attempt will be made. The islands lie in the course of travel across the Pacific and within close trading distance of the United States and they have been gradually filling up with people holding American ideas These people have inevitably come to the top and in the natural course of events have assumed control.

Whether the next stept will be logicall annexation to the United State is a more difficult question. That such is the ultimate result to be expected seems probable, but it could not be accomplished now without complications it would be better to avoid, and our government can best afford to watch and wait events. The landing of a force of United States marines at Honolulu may be regarded as merely a piece of public police sevice not as assuming anything like a protectorate. We must, of course, defend Hawaiia against interference from any other nation, but as to taking this unfortunate little country into the Union, there is time enough for that.—Times.

Intense Suffering 11 Years.

Hood's Healed the Sore in Seven Weeks—A Perfect Cure.

"I will recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as first-class. It has proved its merits to us. Twelve years ago my wife was picking raspberries when she scratched herself on a brier, the wound from which soon developed into a terrible sore, between her knee and ankle. Notwithstanding all we did for it, it continued discharging for eleven long years. We tried medical skill on every side, with no effect. About a year ago she read of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it herself, and while taking the first bottle she felt better and continued with it until today she is entirely well and better than ever. The sore was healed up in seven weeks. Her limb is perfectly sound. We attribute her cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." JACOB N. AUGHENBAUGH, Etters, York Co., Pa.

Time Honored Cosmetics.

From London Society.

The Chinese women, who have coarse hard hair, though beautiful, use a curious mixture of honey and flour to cleanse and soften it. The Creoles in the Island of Cuba use a decoction of rosemary leaves, which they pretend softens and cleanses the hair.

In Southeran America the women use the root of the soap tree boiled in water. The yolk of an egg is considered a good thing, but the hair must be washed well afterwards. A very excellent thing is a decoction of quinine or Peruvian bark. Take half a pint of good spirits, in which dissolve a quarter of an ounce of sulphate of quinine, close this tightly in a bottle and then leave for a few days, shaking it occasionally.

Afterward add a pint of rum and an ounce of powdered Peruvian bark; leave this for a week or ten days, then filter through blotting paper, and then unite the two mixtures together and use to wash the roots of the hair with a sponge, half the quinine mixture and half water.

The women won a victory in the Senate at Harrisburg, Thursday of last week in the final passage of the bill making them eligible as notaries public. much merriment was created as a few Senators recorded their opposition to this innovation.

Kellar will be the attraction at the Opera House, Friday evening, and everyone should reserve their seats in advance, as we are sure the Opera House will not hold the people. Mr. Dentler sold One Hundred tickets the first day. Prof. Kellar will be pleased with his house here, and the way seats are selling shows that good attractions will pack the house. The children can enjoy this performance and no one will regret taking his or her little one to see the marvelous tricks performed by this great magician and his company of clever artists. This will be the only time Prof. Kellar will appear here and don't let anything stand in the way of your going Friday night.

Prof. Kellar and his company of twelve artists, with a car load of mechanical appliances will arrive on the Phila. & Reading road about twelve o'clock noon Friday. Don't forget the date and reserve your seat at once at Dentler's shoe store.

Stumbling on Fortunes.

HOW GOLD MINES HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED BY MERE CHANCE.

From the Boston Globe.

Gold was discovered in California in 1848, and in Colorado in 1858. The discovery was accidental in both cases, and the fact created the impression that mines were "lying about loose." Adventurers drifted about in hopes of stumbling upon a mine. Here are some instances of lucky finds:

Three men while looking for gold in California discovered the dead body of a man who evidently had been "prospecting."

"Poor fellow," said one of the trio, "he has passed in his checks."

"Let's give him a decent burial," said another. "Some wife or mother will be glad if ever she knows it."

They began to dig a grave. Three feet below the surface they discovered signs of gold.

The stranger was buried in another place, and where they had located a grave they opened a gold mine.

An adventurer who had drifted to Leadville awoke one morning without food or money. He went out and shot a deer, which, in its dying agonies, kicked up the dirt and disclosed signs of gold. The poor man staked out a "claim," and opened one of the most profitable claims ever worked in Leadville.

"Dead Man's Claim," the name given to another rich mine in Leadville, was discovered by a broken down miner while digging a grave.

A miner died when there was several feet of snow on the ground. His comrades laid his body in a snow bank and hired a man for $4 to dig a grave.

The gravedigger, after three days' absence, was found digging a mine instead of a grave. While excavating he had struck gold.

An unsuccessful Australian miner went up and down Colorado for several months "prospecting" for gold and finding none.

One day he sat down upon a stone, and while musing over his hard luck aimlessly struck a stone with his pick He chipped off a piece and sprang to his feet. The chip was rich gold quartz.

He hurried into the little town of Rosita, and went to the assay office, where a teamster had just dumped a load of wood. He agreed to saw the wood to pay for assaying his chipped sample.

The result of the assay sent him back to his "claim." When he had taken out of it $500,000 he sold the mine for $400,000 in cash and $1,000,000 in stock.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30, 1893.

President-elect Cleveland has long ago shown that he possesses the rare faculty of being able to see and to do the right thing at the right time and place. Therefore it was not surprising that his telegram of condolence should have been among the first received by the widow of James G. Blaine, the American statesman. Although differing widely in many of their ideas there was one bond of sympathy between them, one prominent trait in the character of each of them that the other could admire without forgetting their political difference, and that was the intense Americanism, which was the keystone of Mr. Blaine's great popularity, and which makes Grover Cleveland the most popular living American, to-day. And therein lies a lesson that should not be lost upon men ambitious of popularity and power. There never was a period in the history of our country when sturdy, uncompromising Americanism was more highly appreciated by the masses than it is now.

Mr. Blaine's funeral, which was held to-day at the Church of the Covenant, was by request of his family made as simple as possible. The pall bearers were all intimate personal friends of the deceased and the services at the church were confined to the reading of the Presbyterian burial ritual and a prayer by the pastor. With the exception of an organ dirge before and after the short services, played by Walter Damrosch, the husband of one of Mr. Blaine's daughters, there was no music. Not one-tenth of the people who wanted to attend the funeral, could get in the church, and a very large crowd remained outside during the services and afterwards followed the remains to Oak Hill cemetery where the interment was made, Mr. Blaine having requested that he be buried there by the side of son Walker who died suddenly several years ago. There was much disappointment here because the funeral was not public, and at the Capitol. Congress adjourned from Saturday to two o'clock this afternoon to give its members an opportunity to attend the funeral, and all of the Government buildings were closed to-day.

Unless there is great change in the present opinion of the democratic Senators nothing short of a cloture rule, which the Senate refused to adopt when the Force bill was under consideration, will enable the republicans to confirm the nomination of the republican successor to the late Justice Lamar, whom Mr. Harrison is said to be determined to nominate. The democratic Senators are unanimous in the belief that this vacancy should be filled by a democrat and they will not allow a vote to be taken on the nomination of a republican unless compelled to do so by a cloture rule.

The House committee on Rules has set aside February 9 and 10 for consideration of the Andrews bill for the repeal of the Sherman Silver law. The general impression seems to be that a vote will not be reached, although a number of the friends of the bill express confidence in its being passed.

If Postmaster General Wannamaker holds the reception to the employes of his department which was to have been held at his residence to-night the invitations to which were withdrawn on account of the death of Mr. Blaine he will retire from office with the personal illwill of nine-tenths of the white employees of the department. The reason is not difficult to locate. In sending out invitations for the reception he included all of the negro laborers, watchmen, messengers, and scrub women on the department pay roll, and the white clerks, particularly the females, object to associating on terms of social equality with the negroes.

Considerable interest is felt as to what position the administration will take on the petition of the provisional Hawaiian government for annexation to the United States. Whatever view Mr. Harrison may take of the matter it is hardly probably that any action will be taken by the present Congress.

The House Ways and Means committee is putting in some hard work studying and digesting the Treasury statement furnished by Secretary Foster last week, and Senator Carlisle has taken a copy of it over to President elect Cleveland.

Senator Carey has given notice of two amendments to the House bill for the admission of New Mexico; one including Utah and Oklahoma in accordance with a decision of the republican caucus, and another including those two and Arizona. Unless the plans of the republican caucus are changed it is very doubtful whether any vote will be reached on this question at the present session.

The election of Representative Mitchell, of Wisconsin, who was chairman of the democratic Congressional committee in the last campaign, to the Senate is gratifying to democrats here, and they regard the promotion as deserved.

Mr. and Mrs. McSwat Pass an Interesting Half Hour Comparing Notes.

Mrs. McSwat—Billiger, how often do you get shaved?

Mr. McSwat—About four times a week, on an average.

"How much time does it usually require?"

"About half an hour."

"Half an hour four times a week! That's two hours a week, four and one-third days in a year, and nearly a month and a half in ten years. Think of it, Billiger. If you should let your beard grow you would save time enough in ten years——"

"But look here, Lobelia! Great Scott! I don't want to let it grow. Did you ever see me with a full set of whiskers?"

"No, but——"

"Well, let it be the cause of the most heartfelt joy and gratitude you ever experienced, Lobelia, that you never did! With a full beard, madam, I look like a cocoanut in a fit of delerium tremens. I tried it once, years ago. Dogs barked at me on the street, children fled from me in terror, footpads who caught a glimpse of me by moonlight, or in the pale, flickering rays of a street lamp, dropped their sandbags and slunk tremblingly up the alleys, and I was offered $60 a week and all expenses by a dime museum manager for a year's engagement. My portrait was hawked all over the country as the most hideous——"

"I don't believe any of that stuff, Billinger, and I'm sure——"

"Don't interrupt me, madam. My beard grows straight out, up, down, sideways, every bristle for itself, like the spines on a fretful chestnut burr, and it grows in every shade and color from brindle to vermillion and back again. If you could see me once with a hedge-fence all over my face you would——"

"But think of the time you lose in——"

"The time I lose! Look here! How often do you fix your hair?"

"Every day of my life, of course, but that's different."

"That's different, is it, hey! How long does it take you to fix it?"

"I think you're just as——"

"You needn't answer. I know how long it takes. I've seen you do it often enough. It takes you half an hour every blessed day of your life to look after your frizzes, if that's what you call them. Think of it! Half an hour a day, three hours and a half a week, nearly eight days in a year, an entire month in four years, a whole year in forty-eight years, and over two years in a century! Lobelia, you'd better go and look after the baby."

Copied the Name from His Grip.

Mr. Smith, an English traveler, arrived one evening at a hotel in Austria. On the way he had picked up a smart German and hired him as a servant. In Austria every one staying at a hotel is obliged to register his name and occupation in a book, which is kept for police examination, says Gripsack, so Mr. Smith told his servant Fritz to bring this book for him to write his name.

"I have already registered, milor," said Fritz, "as an English gentleman of independent means."

"But I've never told you my name, so how do you know what it is?"

"I copied it from milor's portmanteau," answered Fritz.

"Why, it isn't on my portmanteau," cried Mr. Smith, "bring the book here and let me see what you have put down."

The book was brought and Mr. Smith, to his amusement, discovered that his clever servant had described him as:

"Mousieur Warranted Solid Leather!"

He Knew What News Was.

The man was ugly, but the city editor of the Western Wind stirred him up in two minutes, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Is this the newspaper office?" inquired the caller.

"It is," replied the man at the desk.

"Didn't this paper say I was a liar?" and he began prancing.

"It did not."

"Didn't it say I was a thief?"

"It did not."

"Didn't it say I was a scoundrel?"

"It did not."

"Well, some paper said it."

"Possibly it was our contemporary down the street," suggested the editor as he caressed a paper-weight. "This paper publishes only what is news."

They Must Have Been Lying.

"It's curious," remarked the boatman to the Krupp foundry worker, "that my task is no sooner begun than it's over."

"Lucky dog!" returned his companion; "for my work is big gun long after it's ore.—Tid-Bits.

The Loss He Felt.

Brown—Here is some tobacco, my poor man. You must feet the loss of a smoke after dinner.

Beggar—No, sir. I feel the loss of my dinner before the smoke.—Tid-Bits.

A Good Reason.

Stranger—Why do you put the choir so high up in the gallery?

Deacon—Because the bass has such a deep voice that if he was below nobody could hear him unless they sat in the cellar.—Puck.

In the Hunt.

"Is young Moneygetter fond of hunting?"

"Pshaw, no; the only thing he ever chases is the nimble sixpence."—Rider and Driver.

He Lit Out.

She made a lovely little quilt,
A trifle, for the fair.
But when her husband saw the bill
He climbed the golden stair.

All Must Pay Fare.

WHOLESALE ARREST OF LEGISLATORS RIDE ON PASSES.

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 23,

The details of a sheme were concluded here this evening, which promises to result in startling surprises to some of the members of the Pennsylvania Legislature. The plan is a wholesale arrest of the members of both Houses who ride on free passes.

Several prominent reformers are at the head of the scheme, one of whom is a resident of Philadelphia, while another lives in Pittsburg. The plan of procedure is as follows:

Three or four trusted men will be sent Harrisburg, where they will spend several weeks in getting acquainted with all the members of both Houses.

They will be under the charge of one person, to whom they will make regular daily reports. Whenever it is learned that any member of the Legislature is going away on the train one man will be detailed to follow him, and will take note of the fact whether or not he offers a pass, and also the name of the conductor and the number of the train on which he is a passenger. At the close of each week all those on duty will leave Harrisburg, and follow the members as far as necessary to complete their observations. Two men have been on duty ever since the Legislature convened. They have made trips over all the roads from one end of the State to the other.

As soon as the fact regarding a member are fully obtained, no more attention will be paid to him. Thus the list will be gone over until all have been scanned. Scarcely one member in 20 has been found who does not ride on a pass.

The best legal talent has been secured, from whom an opinion has been given that those who take passes will be indictable under Section 15 of Article 2 of the Constitution, on the charge of violating their oath of office. The oath is violated if they take passes, which the Constitution strictly, forbids, while in their oath they swear to defend and obey the Constitution.

Among the few omitted from the list from Philadelphia are one of the Democratic members and two Republicans. The report of the preliminary committee shows that Henry W. Fishel of York County, pays his fare. The same is said to be true of Jerome B. Niles, of Tioga.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
